

David Boone

Mission Critical Project Manager

David Boone is a Senior Project Manager with AccuTech Construction, whose focus is his client's final occupancy of the project and their complete satisfaction with the result. He has developed a deep understanding of his client's needs based on his background of banking and development in order to inform his construction project management, and then focus his team, subcontractors, and suppliers around those objectives. As a former competitive surfer, he has developed his own personal discipline around meeting specific goals with the control required to master multiple priorities from different directions, similar to swiftly navigating ten-foot waves.
